00:25:15 Jessica Peyton / SPUR Public Programs: Thanks for joining us everyone!

00:26:03 Jessica Peyton / SPUR Public Programs: Please use the chat to share your thoughts and opinions, but don't forget to use the Q&A function at the bottom of your screen to ask your questions. Make sure you get them in there before we get to the Q&A section of the program!

00:27:31 Bob Redman: Shari Davis...Have you worked with Oakland's FY 21-23 budget.?

00:30:36 Lynne Bramlett: Can you share examples as to how to get started and/or point us to resources? I'm sold on the concept. However, there will be ample resistance to this from those who like the status quo in my municipality.

00:33:18 Jessica Peyton / SPUR Public Programs: Hi everyone! Just a reminder to please place your questions in the Q&A function! That way we can keep track of them without them getting lost in the chat.

00:38:06 Dike Ahanotu: How do you ensure that a PB process doesn't get bogged down by extremist elements that don't actually represent the community?

00:41:05 Amy Flynn: This is an answer to what tools/ resources might be available. Balancing Act offers a variety of tools for public engagement, one of which, Prioritize, has been very popular for PB. Our website is <https://abalancingact.com/> Here is our demo for Prioritize: <https://anytownv2.abalancingact.com/anytown-cip-plan> If you email me I can share some PB client examples: amy@abalancingact.com

00:48:08 Kelly Baker: I'm part of a group working to get PB citywide in Oakland - would love to connect with local folks interested in this topic! We have weekly People Power Happy Hours at Telegraph Beer Garden on Thursdays (tomorrow!) - you can learn more here <https://communitydemocracyproject.org/>

00:56:35 Ali Schwarz: can speakers talk about processes and significance of contracting with community based organizations?

these are websites to see case studies and research on PB

01:04:12 Amy Flynn: Here is a recent example of PB from Denver, CO, using Prioritize: <https://denver.abalancingact.com/denver-pb-2022-eng?preview=a821507d32e16eafa6017bf40f59b28b> They had 4 different versions that focused on specific areas of the city, this link is for the city-wide version.

01:07:44 Jessica Peyton / SPUR Public Programs: Thanks for joining us today everyone. We'll post the recording of this conversation on the event page within the next couple of days.

01:08:06 Lynne Bramlett: Thank you panelists. This has been wonderful. Appreciate the pointer to Sherry Arnstein's work too. I had never heard of her and will print out her paper. All book suggestions welcome too.

01:09:01 Shari Davis: Thank you so much for being here and with us today everyone

01:09:12 Hollie Russon Gilman: Thank you all!

01:09:15 Shari Davis: I loved the questions that folx brought forward!
01:09:36 Kelly Baker: Thanks so much for the informative and inspiring conversation!
01:09:54 Abimael Chavez-Hernandez: Thanks to everyone for joining us. This was an awesome conversation!
