00:21:36 Jessica Peyton / SPUR Public Programs: Welcome everyone! Thanks for joining.

00:22:53 Jessica Peyton / SPUR Public Programs: As Eli said, please use the chat to share your thoughts and ideas with the group. Make sure you select 'everyone' from the dropdown if you want to share a comment. However, if you have a question for panelists, make sure you use the Q&A function at the bottom of the screen (or top if you're on mobile). That way your questions won't get lost in the chat.

00:28:22 Eli Zigas: More info about the pilot: <https://www.fns.usda.gov/snap/hip>

00:33:17 Eli Zigas: More about CA's EBT Pilot: <https://www.cdss.ca.gov/inforesources/ebt/california-fruit-vegetable-ebt-pilot-project>

00:34:00 Eli Zigas: And also some more info about CA pilot: <https://www.spur.org/news/2022-02-15/spur-and-others-pilot-new-technology-making-healthy-food-more-affordable>

00:37:49 Donna Martin: So if it is tied to the EBT card then I assume that it will be offered at all SNAP retailers, is that correct? How do you then estimate a budget? Isn't it a lot more?

00:38:59 Jessica Peyton / SPUR Public Programs: Hi everyone! Just a reminder that if you want your question answered by our panelists, please use the Q&A function. We're more likely to see it there, as sometimes they get lost in the chat.

00:39:17 Mason Durfee: How marvelous!

00:39:28 Alyssa Auvinen: @Ai-Lan - $50/month is the limit

00:39:50 Donna Martin: Follow up question - how does "SNAP" know which locations are participating?

00:45:06 Mason Durfee: Kudos on all your work, panelists. What an awesome time to have these resources reaching SNAP shoppers post pandemic. Great work :)

00:46:24 Kate Balestracci: great work Kerri!!

00:46:59 Kerri Connolly: Thank you!

00:48:48 Kerri Connolly: I also didn't answer that piece of the question but echo the guessing game sentiment. We have $10 million to spend so I will keep folks updated as to how long that lasts.

00:49:03 Donna Martin: How are the grocery stores reacting to this? If the customers earn at their location but can take the earned incentive to somewhere like Walmart, Aldi, etc. what is in it for the participating grocery stores?

00:50:36 Donna Martin: Oh sorry.

00:51:56 Ai-Lan Whitson: also address nutrition insecurity, not just food insecurity

00:52:04 Jan Warren: What does HIP stand for?

00:52:43 Kerri Connolly: Healthy Incentive Pilot

00:53:11 Rebecca Miller: Healthy Incentives Program

00:53:13 Ai-Lan Whitson: looks like Healthy Incentives Program (HIP) from their website

00:54:50 Ai-Lan Whitson: please add RDN (Registered Dietitian Nutritionist) to the team if possible

01:01:21 Barbara Herbst: Are all state SNAP agencies informed of this grant opportunity?

01:03:35 Steve Methvin: outstanding content and contributions - thanks teams!

01:03:47 Andrea Gold: @ Barbara - yes - FNS shared this grant opportunity with all State SNAP Agencies on 1/19.

01:05:00 Barbara Herbst: Thank you!

01:06:02 Ben Feldman: Different settings require different models and if the earn/spend models are restricted to produce for produce it will limit the impact of the program and limit the benefits to both farmers and SNAP participants

01:07:52 Rachael Ward: I believe my question has been skipped a couple of times: "Has funding for the incentive portion changed (or is it planning to change) as integration pilots are started? For example, are states now funding the incentives or is it still a mixture of private/GusNIP/state funding?"

01:12:09 Ben Feldman: Thanks Mia

01:12:49 Noah Christman: Great program, as always. Thanks, Eli and the SPUR team!
