00:34:17 Nick Pilch: Your room is probably equipped with an occupancy sensor and if you are not moving much, it assumes there is no one in the room and shuts the lights off.

00:35:52 Pacita Rudder: Congrats on the best riverwalk awards!

00:36:07 Carolyn / SPUR: Have a question about what's been discussed so far? Make sure to submit it through the Q&A panel and we'll get to it towards the end of the session!

00:36:32 Nick Pilch: Congrats - wonderful work on the Detroit waterfront

00:37:50 Shruti Altekar: Wonderful work on Detroit, looking forward to Memphis! Will this presentation be recorded with slides for reference?

00:42:00 Pacita Rudder: Hi Shruti, yes this is being recorded and you'll find the recording, transcript, and slides on our past events page on the SPUR website about a week from today.

00:42:22 Shruti Altekar: Great, thank you Pacita!

00:44:00 Marc Pasco: Thanks for the kind words, Nick. Come visit the Detroit Riverfront and let us know when you're coming.

00:47:43 Neal Harrison: Curious to understand the various funding mechanism from planning to execution to ongoing maintenance for these various riverfront projects

00:49:12 Carolyn / SPUR: Hi Neal, would you like to add your question to the Q&A tab? That way, presenters can see. Thanks!

00:49:33 Pacita Rudder: Incredible work in Memphis!

00:50:33 Carol Coletta : Thanks! Happy to explain the various funding mechanisms.

00:53:49 Seve Ghose: Were you able to draw any inspiration from similar riverfront work in Davenport, Iowa; Louisville, Kentucky; Nashville, TN, and Chattanooga, TN.

01:06:23 Marc Pasco: In the early days of the Conservancy, we visited many cities with great riverfront and public spaces to see those spaces and learn best practices from the people who created them. Numerous cities and organizations now visit us to see how we are transforming the riverfront.

01:07:34 Carol Coletta : So did we. Three cities, four riverfronts, four days. Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia. That's what got Memphis going on riverfront development.

01:08:22 Mostafa J khiabani: asking people what they want to be in projects could be a real engagement?

01:12:13 Carolyn / SPUR: Thank you for joining us! We look forward to seeing you at the next SPUR program!

01:12:14 Nick Pilch: Congrats to Memphis too.

01:12:22 Carol Coletta : Thanks, Nick

01:12:26 John Bela: Thanks All! Great talk!

01:12:30 Nick Pilch: Great to see all those large-scale significant work.
